VOL. 79, No. 9

15 Crescent Rd., Suite 100, Greenbelt, MD 20770-1887

JANUARY 21, 2016

At 5:15 on January 19, a passerby noticed that the house at 1 Lakeview Circle was on fire. No one was hurt, though there was considerable damage to the building. The passerby saw smoke coming from the roof and flames inside the second story window. Within five minutes firefighters from Greenbelt, Beltsville, Branchville and other county departments were on the scene. Firefighters reported attacking the fire in the kitchen area, as well as in the top floor and attic. Fire crews had the fire under control within 20 minutes, though trucks lined Lakeside Drive for a few hours.

City, GHI Take Steps in Considering Museum Expansion to 10A Crescent

by Kathleen Gallagher

At its regular meeting on January 11, the Greenbelt City Council introduced for first reading an ordinance to authorize the city to acquire by negotiated purchase the rights-to-use for the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) house at 10A Crescent Road. This unit is the other half of the duplex that houses the Greenbelt Museum at 10B, for which the city has held the rights since its purchase in 1987. The ordinance, which also authorizes the mayor and the city manager to execute all the appropriate documents, will return on the agenda of the council's Monday, January 25 meeting for second reading and proposed adoption.

In the meantime, just down the road at Hamilton Place, the GHI Board of Directors has begun its own process for reviewing the request from the city to become the GHI member at 10A. Opinions were solicited from GHI members through the beginning of this week. According to Board President Steven Skolnik, through January 15 response had been light. Only 15 comments had been received from members, 14 of them supportive of the city's plan. The board expects to consider the matter on the agenda of its next regular meeting on Thursday, January 21 at 7:30 p.m. in the GHI Board Room.

The city's ordinance stipulates the sale price to be up to $200,000 plus any related costs or fees. Since GHI is a cooperative, the sale would not actually be for the real estate at 10A, but rather to enter into a mutual ownership contract (MOC) with GHI that would give the city a right to perpetual use of the unit. The MOC also lists the rights and obligations of a member and the cooperative to each other. Since the city is already a GHI member by virtue of its MOC for 10B, it would be allowed to continue to than half the usual time. The introduction for first reading of an ordinance for the city to purchase the rights-to-use for the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) house located at 10A Crescent Road is reported in the article above. Other items covered at the January 11 meeting included a resolution to purchase canine turf, a program for planting chestnut trees and state legislation once again being introduced in the new General Assembly session to discourage use of plastic bags in retail stores.

Artificial Dog Turf

A resolution to negotiate the purchase of artificial dog turf for the dog yards at the city's animal shelter was introduced for first reading and will return to the agenda of the January 25 regular meeting for action. Complaints about the condition of the ground at both the shelter and the dog park resulted in investigation of artificial turf as a possible solution to problems in both areas. Celia Craze, director of Planning and Community Development, had reported at the department's budget worksession last year that it had become impossible to maintain a grass yard at the shelter because of the very heavy use by dogs, poor drainage and a lack of sunlight. As a result, the yard becomes wet and muddy, which in turn causes the inside of the shelter to become wet and muddy. Not only does that result in higher maintenance costs but it is also a possible health hazard for both the dogs and the staff.

Council included $15,000 in this year's budget to install the turf at the shelter since the need there was greater and because staff members were less certain about the suitability of the turf for use at the much larger dog park. It was then decided to take advantage of the opportunity to

by Erin Josephitis

The Greenbelt Forest Stewardship Project led a tree protection volunteer event in Buddy Attick Park on Monday, January 18 in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Day. Over 50 volunteers and three Public Works employees honored the holiday by contributing to a National Day of Service. Participants of all ages demonstrated hard work and positive attitudes throughout the event despite frigid temperatures.

Volunteers met inside the Public Works Department for orientation to the Greenbelt Forest Stewardship Project. A short video demonstrated the impact of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Following the history lesson was an introduction to the Public Works Department's role in coexisting with beavers.

The purpose of protecting trees is to sustain the forest by coexisting with beavers. In order to maintain woodlands from transforming into wetlands, certain slow-growth tree species must be protected from beavers with wire caging placed around trunks. In order to ensure adequate food and building materials for beaver dams and lodges, non-native trees are purposely left uncaged.

After orientation, volunteers took a bus or walked along the lake path to see the beaver dam in person. Volunteers were divided into groups to learn the proper techniques to protect trees from beavers and English ivy. Wire cutters were used to remove tight wire and fencing was replaced on some previously caged trees to provide enough space for continued tree growth. Hand shears were used to remove English ivy from trees. An estimated 25 trees were protected with wire caging and 40 trees were liberated from the invasive English ivy.

Laughter could be heard throughout the forest as individuals and families worked together to make the holiday a day on, not a day off. Thanks to all the individual participants and volunteer groups, especially Islamic Relief USA, Eleanor Roosevelt High School National Honor Society, Chesapeake Education, Arts and Research Society (CHEARS), Junior Miss Greenbelt, Little Miss Greenbelt and St. Vincent Pallotti High School. Thanks also to Bagel Place of College Park for donating bagels and to Generous Joe's for donating

Snow Alert

There may be a big storm this weekend or it could be just a couple of inches. Here are the preparations.

Public Schools: A Friday storm won't affect the students in the public schools, since the day is already designated as a Professional Development Day.

The Recreation Department and City: The Greenbelt Recreation Department normally follows the school closings, but also puts schedule changes on the weather and information hotline: 301-474-0646. Community Center Coordinator, Rebekah Sutfin, says patrons can also check the city website, and sign up for the city's alert system.

Library: Changes in the library's schedule will be posted on the library's website.

Food and Shovels: Shopping before a storm can get crowded. The Co-op Supermarket and Pharmacy ordered extra milk, bread, snow shovels and ice melt salt among other things. "We stock up on things that are in high demand," said store manager Bob Davis. He also coordinates additional staff to keep the store running smoothly. At 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday, the store was crowded with shoppers.

Letters to the Editor

Original Row Of Townhouses

I really enjoyed seeing my row of townhouses (33 Court Ridge, A-D) featured on page 7 (80 years ago) of the January 14 issue of the News Review. It was a nice picture of the row too. There is at least one picture of the row from the Library of Congress (LOC) that used to hang in the Community Center – haven't checked lately. I think it would be neat to do a then and now picture of events like this.

I didn't actually know before that my row was the first although I suspected it because the Gardenway unit that is next to me has a plaque saying that it was the first inhabited house but the LOC picture of my row shows that the Gardenway house wasn't built yet.

So anyway, now I know when to tell my house happy birthday!

Happy New Year!

The Community Relations Advisory Board. (CRAB) is an advisory body to the city council. Our charter is to "Foster sympathetic understanding, harmonious relationships, tolerance, good will, individual responsibility and a practical cooperation among all groups and individuals in the community."

In an effort to better understand and address community concerns, we have adopted a policy of meeting at least quarterly in various locales throughout the city. We want to hear from you. All of our meetings are open. Scheduled meetings will be listed in the News Review on the page called city information.

In the spirit of the recent holidays, we would like to remind all Greenbelters of the Community Pledge, which was proposed by CRAB and adopted by council. Please keep it in mind this season and at all times when commenting publicly and through various media, including letters and ads in this newspaper.

"The strength of Greenbelt is diverse people living together in a spirit of cooperation.

We celebrate people of many cultures, faiths and races living together.

By sharing together all are enriched.

We pledge to foster a community which is respectful, safe and fair for all people."

Rick Ransom, Chair; Jacquelyn Carrington, Co-Chair; Janet Parker; Kevin Hammett; Dan Hamlin: Dea Zugby and Jamie Krauk.

Golden Age Club

The Golden Age Club is ready for another active and enjoyable year. The following slate of officers was installed on January 6, 2016: President Brenda Cooley, First Vice President John Henry Jones, Second Vice President Randi Anderson, Recording Secretary Bunny Fitzgerald, Corresponding Secretary Cathie Brennan, Treasurer Wallace Wilcox.

We have welcomed several new members and would like lots more. The Program Chair, Suze Marley, has some great things planned for the New Year and we enjoy Bingo every month.

Remember to laugh at yourself and you'll always be amused.

On Screen

Spotlight and Room

Two somber, riveting movies open this Friday at Old Greenbelt Theatre. Both explore the dark abyss of human cruelty, many circles into hell. Both are worth seeing.

Spotlight is a newsroom procedural which focuses on the exposure of some of Boston's Catholic clergy (over 100 priests) involved in child abuse over several decades. It feels like a taut detective thriller, though one saturated with enormous sadness. Michael Keaton, Rachel McAdams, Mark Ruffalo, Liev Schreiber, John Slattery and Stanley Tucci rip the lid off of the coverup.

Running time 128 minutes R rating

Room tells the heroic story of a kidnapped young woman who lives in a one room prison and bears the child of her rapist/captor. Cherishing her child, she eventually escapes and raises the child on her own. The ending certainly can't be called happy, but it is a paean to the determination and generosity of the human spirit.

Running time 118 minutes R rating

Q & A on County Schools Budget

On Monday, January 25 at 6 p.m., community members are invited to learn more about the Prince George's County Public Schools (PGCPS) proposed operating budget for Fiscal Year 2017. The meeting, which will take place in Room 114 of the Community Center, is being sponsored by the Prince George's County Advocates for Better School. Staff from the PGCPS budget office will be in attendance to answer questions.

The proposed operating budget can be accessed on line at 1.pgcps.org/budget/index. aspx?id=220014. For more information about the event, contact pgcabschools@gmail.com.

City Offers Rain Garden Workshops

The Department of Public Works is offering a series of three free workshops for those who have thought about planting a rain garden but felt that they needed some help. The first workshop, Stormwater Audit, will be held January 30 from 10 a.m. to noon. Attendees will learn how to assess a property for stormwater problems and opportunities and how to site a rain garden.

On February 27, a workshop will feature a tour of local rain gardens so attendees can view displays and talk with local landscapers. The third, a Rain Garden Clinic on March 19, will allow attendees to get real-time help with rain garden design and a Rain Check Rebate application.

All workshops will be held at the Public Works Office, 555 Crescent Road; door prizes and refreshments will be included. To register go to: signupgenius.com/ go/20f084eaaa72eaaff2-rain.

Beech Tree Puppets

On Sunday, January 24 at 2 p.m., Beech Tree Puppets bring their new show, Rainbow Crow Brings Daylight, to the New Deal Café. The show combines two American Indian creation stories from the Lenape and the Inuit tribes. Crow has been revered by many cultures throughout the ages. Follow Crow on his journey to the Sky Spirit, as he saves the animals, then travels to the Land of the Light. The show premiered in December 2015 at Greenbelt Elementary School as part of a two-year artists-in-residency, funded by the PTA, the GES Family Art Fund, and a grant from the Prince George's Arts and Humanities Council. This free performance at the New Deal Café is sponsored by the Friends of New Deal Café Arts with support from the City of Greenbelt. The show, which is suitable for ages 4 to 104, lasts about 45 minutes. For more information, go to newdealcafe.com or beechtreepuppets.com.

Beltsville Garden Club Meets January 27

On Wednesday, January 27 at 7:30 p.m., the Beltsville Garden Club will meet in the multipurpose room of the Duckworth School, 11201 Evans Trail. Thomas Rainer will present Planting in a Post-Wild World: Designing Plant Communities for More Resilient Landscapes.

Join landscape architect Rainer, a leading voice in ecological landscape design, to learn how plants fit together in nature and how to use this knowledge to create landscapes that are resilient, beautiful and diverse. The public is welcome and admission is free. Refreshments will be served following the program.

Botanic Garden Holds Cooking Workshop

A Cooking Demonstration: Roots of Flavor will be offered at the U.S. Botanic Garden on Thursday, January 28 at noon and repeated at 12:45. Speakers include Adrienne Cook, gardening and cooking writer, and Danielle Cook, nutritionist and cooking instructor. Turmeric root and ginger root are often seen sideby-side on grocery shelves, but how to use them? Learn about the nutritional value of these two powerhouse roots and how to incorporate them for maximum flavor in delicious original recipes. The workshop is free; no pre-registration is required.

Climate Change and Food Security at Mishkan Torah

On Thursday, January 28 at 7:30 pm, Lewis H. Ziska, Ph.D, a plant physiologist with the USDA's Agricultural Research Service in Beltsville, will present a talk entitled Climate Change and the Future of Food at Mishkan Torah Synagogue in Greenbelt. Hosted by Mishkan Torah's Social Action Committee, the talk is free and open to the public.

According to Ziska, "documented and projected changes in atmospheric carbon dioxide are likely to alter agricultural productivity directly, by supplying additional carbon for photosynthesis and growth, and indirectly, by altering surface temperatures and precipitation."

In this overview on the impact of carbon dioxide and climate change on food security, Ziska will present data from a number of sources that document the likely changes in temperature, carbon dioxide and water on crop quality and production and will identify other biological interactions with pests, weeds and diseases. In addition, he will discuss adaptation strategies, focusing on exploiting genetic and intra-specific variability within plant germplasm as a possible means to maintain agricultural production in the future.

Seniors and Customers with

Disabilities RIDE FREE

After graduating from the University of California, Davis, Ziska first served as a Smithsonian fellow and later became the project leader for global climate change at the International Rice Research Institute in the Philippines. Since joining USDA in 1998, Ziska has published over 100 peer-reviewed research articles relating to climate change and rising carbon dioxide.

These articles address agriculture and food security, weeds and weed management, invasive species and plant biology and public health. Ziska is a recent contributor to the 2014 International Panel on Climate Change report (food security chapter) and the 2014 National Climate Assessment (public health chapter). His work has appeared in Scientific American, USA Today, CBS Nightly News, National Geographic, The New York Times, and The Wall Street Journal. He is the author of Weed Biology and Climate Change (with Jeff Dukes, Wiley Press) and the editor of Invasive Species and Global Climate Change (with Jeff Dukes, CABi Press).

The synagogue is located at 10 Ridge Road. Light refreshments will be served.

We didn't hear of any big wins for our Greenbelt neighbors in the recent PowerBall drawing. Better luck next time!

The wait is over for parents Digna and David, and siblings Charles and Hillary. Devin-Linh Kent Cockerham arrived at 5:03 a.m. on Tuesday, January 12, 2016. He weighed in at 9 lbs 7 oz and is 20 inches long. Congratulations to the Cockerham

Tim and Meadow Platt and big brother, James, of Ridge Road joyfully welcomed baby, Rose Mary, January 15. Happy grandparents are Mac and Mary Wirick, former longtime Greenbelt residents, and Ken and News Review Staffer Marylee Platt of Crescent Road.

Congratulations to the Greenbelt MakerSpace/Magnolia Elementary R5 Robotics team. They competed against 31 teams at the First Lego League event last weekend, and their sixth place finish earns them a chance to compete at the state championship in March.

Get well wishes to David Lange who is now at home recuperating from pneumonia.

New Rolling Bins to Enhance Recycling Delivery in Greenbelt

hy Amy Hanse

Rolling bins may be coming to your house soon. The City of Greenbelt is "providing new bright blue bins to enhance recycling," said recycling coordinator Luisa Robles. By giving people more space and keeping the recycling materials dry as well as allowing more automation and saving the workers' backs, there will be greater efficiency.

"The rolling carts allow people to put more recyclables in the bin," she said. "Many people realize some things are recyclable, but don't put them in their bin because they feel there is not enough space. This way there is no space constraint."

She added that the new bins prevent materials from blowing all over the place and prevent materials from getting wet with rain, so the weight collected is the actual weight of the recyclable items, and not just water.

The bins, which cost the city $65 each, are being distributed around the city. The hope, Robles added, is that these bins will mean fewer injuries for the workers. "Ultimately, this leads to better finances for the city in the form of fewer tipping fees at the landfill and fewer crew members out of work or on 'light' duty," she said.

New trash and recycling bins

hold only one membership vote if it purchases 10A.

The house at 10B was acquired as a museum for use by the city as part of its 50th anniversary celebration in 1987. At the time, it was recognized as extraordinary good luck to have a house become available in a location so near the town center, the Municipal Building and what eventually became the renovated Community Center.

Ever since then, the staff and friends of the museum have hoped that in time it would be possible for the museum to occupy 10A as well. The additional space would permit consolidation of some museum functions currently located in the Community Center, which in turn would enable the museum to offer more tours and be open to the public for increased hours. Space might also be provided for use by researchers studying Greenbelt.

First Time

This is the first time an opportunity has arisen for the city to acquire 10A, since the Dwyer family has resided there for 59 years, serving as excellent neighbors to the museum for the last 28. The executor of the Dwyer estate has expressed willingness to sell to the city for $200,000.

The city council held a public hearing as part of its December 14 regular meeting to solicit comment from residents on the proposed purchase. The room was full of members of the board of the Friends of the Greenbelt Museum, the president of the Greenbelt Community Development Corporation, staff and a number of residents strongly encouraging council to take this next step in expanding the museum as a facility and as a cultural institution in Greenbelt. No one spoke to oppose the sale, but there was a request to be sure that the price was fair and to see if any grant funding might be found to lower the city's costs.

Although Skolnik said he could not speculate on what decision the GHI Board would take, he did enumerate four issues he thought would likely be among those informing the decision:

- (1) What, if any, would be the financial or other impacts that the city's purchase of the rights to 10A would have on the membership as a whole?
- (2) Would the city agree to enter revised "commercial use" MOCs for both 10A and 10B?
- (3) Would the GHI Board be willing to reduce GHI's housing stock by taking 10A Crescent Road out of use as a cooperative residential unit?
- (4) Are there any uses of the unit that would not be acceptable to GHI? If so, what are such uses and would the city agree to avoid them?

If the GHI Board votes on January 21 to allow the city to move forward with the process of purchasing the unit and if the city adopts its ordinance on January 25, the next step would likely be for GHI to draft the intended commercial MOCs and forward them to the city for consideration.

Homeschoolers Visit Police Station; Learn of Careers

by Li'l Dan Celdran

Greenbelt Homeschoolers met at Greenbelt Police Department on Friday, January 15 to tour the station and learn about careers of the police and animal control officers. Officers Torres and Yatsko gave an impressive and thorough tour. Visitors learned about the various job duties of the department and its officers and staff. Children saw where people are processed and fingerprinted and a jail cell. Children learned about Greenbelt's K-9 and emergency response units and how dispatch/ communications work.

Howard Stanback, Greenbelt Animal Control officer, described his job responsibilities and led an interactive discussion about how to care for animals and our pets.

Thanks to Greenbelt Police and Animal Control Departments for hosting our group.

Blood Donation Opportunities

The American Red Cross encourages eligible donors to make a lifesaving commitment to donate blood to help ensure a sufficient blood supply in the new year.

January is a challenging time for blood donations. Inclement weather can result in blood drive cancellations, and cold and flu season may cause some donors to be unable to make or keep blood donation appointments. National Blood Donor Month, celebrated in January since 1970, raises awareness of the need for blood during the winter and throughout the year, while honoring those who roll up a sleeve to help patients in need.

Local blood drives will be held at the following times and locations: January 22, 12:30 to 6 p.m., Greenbelt Community Center, 15 Crescent Road, or, same day and times, American Legion Post 217, 9218 Baltimore Avenue, College Park; January 27, 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Bowie City Gymnasium, 4100 Northview Drive, Bowie; January 29, 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Red Cross Club Stamp Student Union, Baltimore Avenue, College Park.

To make an appointment to donate blood, download the free Red Cross Blood Donor app from app stores, visit redcrossblood. org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767).

Police Blotter

Based on information released by the Greenbelt Police Department, www.greenbeltmd.gov/police

Dates and times are those when police were first contacted about incidents.

Reckless Endangerment

January 7, 3:17 p.m., 5700 block Kara Court. Officers responded to reports of the sound of a gunshot. They spoke to a 71-year-old woman who said she fired a test shot from a handgun. The gun was seized, and she was transported to Washington Adventist Hospital for an emergency psychiatric evaluation.

DWI/DUI

January 9, 1:33 a.m., Hanover Parkway near Greenbrook Drive. A 29-year-old resident was arrested and charged with multiple alcohol- and traffic-related charges after being stopped for a traffic violation.

Assault

January 7, 5:02 p.m., 6000 block Greenbelt Road. A man purchasing items at Burlington Coat Factory was approached by another man who verbally threatened and pushed him and then left the store. When the shopper walked out of the store, the same man approached him again, punched him and fled on foot. He is described as being black, with a light complexion, 21 to 25 years old, 160 to 180 pounds, wearing a green coat, gray sweat pants, black shoes and a green hat.

Sex Offense

January 10, 3:05 p.m., 6000 block Greenbelt Road. A man on a bicycle rode up behind a woman loading groceries into the trunk of her vehicle in the parking lot of Beltway Plaza and touched her inappropriately. He fled on the bike. He is described as a black youth, 14 to 15 years old, wearing a black sweatshirt and grey pants.

January 13, 10 a.m., 7500 block Greenway Center Drive. A technician at a doctor's office was touched inappropriately by a patient during an examination. Staff knows this person, and an investigation is continuing.

Trespass

January 13, 6000 block Greenbelt Road. A 23-year-old nonresident was arrested and charged with trespass after he was located inside Beltway Plaza after having been banned from the mall by agents of the property. He was released on citation pending trial.

Vandalism

January 8, 11 a.m., 9100 block Springhill Lane. The hallway of an apartment building was sprayed with a fire extinguisher.

Vehicle Crime

Three vehicles were stolen. A black 4-door 2009 Toyota Corolla with Md. tags 9ESW97 was taken from the 7500 block Greenbelt Road, a maroon 2004 Buick Rendezvous SUV with Md. tags 9BL2836 was taken from the 6200 block Springhill Court and a red 2001 Dodge Caravan with Md. tags 5MD6837 was taken from 18 Court Ridge Road.

Two vehicles were recovered. A 2007 Nissan Maxima reported stolen to Prince George's County police was recovered at Edmonston Court near Edmonston Road. A 2009 Volkswagen Routan reported stolen December 9 from the 7800 block Mandan Road was recovered January 7 by Prince George's County Police Department in the 1700 block Fernwood Drive in Upper Marlboro.

Five reports of thefts from vehicles were received.

Thefts from unlocked vehicles occurred in the 6100 block Breezewood Court (portable GPS) and 7300 block Morrison Drive (purse). A vehicle in the 7200 block Morrison Drive, also unlocked, was rummaged through but nothing appeared to have been taken.

The front grille of a vehicle in the 8300 block Canning Terrace was taken. Four tires and rims were taken in the 9100 block Springhill Lane.

An attempted theft from auto occurred in the 7500 block Mandan Road. A witness saw two men attempting to remove a tire and rim from a vehicle. They then got into a vehicle described as gray with four doors and fled.

There was one report of vandalism in which two tires were cut in the 200 block Lakeside

The Department is offering a reward of up to $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a suspect in any of the unsolved crimes reported in the blotter.

ERHS Gender Disparity Exemplifies National Divide

by Clara Janzen

Despite equal availability, some science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) classes at Eleanor Roosevelt High School (ERHS) display a clear gender gap, with males dominating, at least in numbers. The divide exemplifies a larger national trend in STEM fields, which is most acute in engineering, physics and computer science.

The National Girls Collaborative Project website says that although women hold the clear majority (57 percent) in receiving bachelor's degrees, they represent only 19 percent of engineering degrees, 19 percent of physics degrees and 43 percent of mathematics and statistics degrees.

Enrollment numbers at ERHS emphasize this gap clearly. Advanced Placement (AP) Computer Science, a class that explores college-level computer programming concepts, has 15 girls enrolled out of 50 total students, and the precursor class Intro to Computer Science has 32 out of 118. On the other hand, AP Language 11 has 70 girls out of the 104 enrolled students.

And higher-level math exhibits an almost perfect divide: of the 100 students enrolled in AP Calculus, 49 are girls.

Physics teacher Yau-Jong Twu, who creates instructive physics videos for her YouTube channel TwuTube, said that in the reports she receives from YouTube only about a third of her viewers are female. What's more, of the 46 total students taking AP Physics C, a calculus-based physics course and the highest level physics class available at ERHS, there are 34 boys and 12 girls. Twu mentioned that the precursor algebra-based physics classes to AP Physics C exhibit an equal boy-girl ratio.

According to Twu, who is in her 17th year of teaching physics at ERHS, her physics classes have "always been like this." Twu suggested that although girls have the same abilities and potential in physics as boys, they just choose to apply themselves in other areas.

"The gender distribution in Physics C is pretty striking," wrote senior Hannah Sutton, who is enrolled in both AP Physics C and AP Biology. "There is definitely some disparity. My AP Physics C class is definitely dominated by guys. My AP Bio class is mostly girls."

"I feel like guys who take upper level science electives get [an] 'Of course he's taking that class, he's really smart' reaction, whereas girls who take the same classes often just end up being 'girls who are taking a hard class'," continued Sutton. "Everyone knows who the 'smart STEM guys' are in our grade or our school, but the girls who do just as well aren't acknowledged as 'smart STEM girls' in the same way."

Some physics students said that they noticed no difference in social attitude. "I definitely see a camaraderie among everyone in physics, no gender-based cliques," said senior David Gardner, who is also an AP Physics C student.

"All of the girls in the class seem to get along well with the boys, so I don't get the impression that anybody is treated differently because of their gender," said senior Christine Bailey. "And also, because it is such a rigorous course, the environment is just really serious and studious most of the time, as everybody is trying their hardest to understand what is going on."

Senior Asha Pawar, who took AP Physics 1 in her junior year, credited her choice to take Microbiology and Physiology instead of Physics C in her senior year to the difficulty of physics.

"Physics is hard, and I didn't feel that continuing would be the best for me since I had a hard time during Physics 1," said the senior, who also said that the self-learning aspect of the class was "good to prepare for college," but "hard [for her] to get used to." She also mentioned that "the social climate for girls is the same, relatively. I learned the same things as the guys in my class and my teacher was not at all biased in any way."

Still, even with students such as Bailey and Pawar citing equal attitude between genders, the fact of the gender divide remains. According to a Business Insider article, factors such as bias, marginalization, competition, stereotypes, lack of encouragement and teasing contribute to the scarcity of women in science. However, if students have found no such activity then further investigation may be needed to understand why the gender divide remains at ERHS. Some suggest the divide may be a result of more subliminal social tides or a common national attitude.

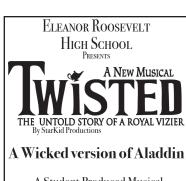

"I feel like people here are more open to women being in STEM, but that there's like this cultural background, so we're hesitant to go into these difficult [fields]" like engineering and physics, said Arlynda Jorgensen, who teaches Engineering Foundations 2 for sophomores in ERHS's STEM program, as well as the college-level Production Systems engineering class and Research Practicum (RP) engineering. Jorgensen said that she grew up in a more conservative environment in Utah, which she described as having a "this is boy's club" attitude.

"A lot of times girls self-select out of engineering and programming classes," said Jorgensen. This could be the case for RP Engineering, a class with only three girls enrolled, higher than last year's two.

"How do we change that cultural ideal that an engineer looks like a man?" asked Jorgensen. "We need to change that cultural ideal" test out the turf at the dog park. The best quote was offered by East Coast Surfacing of Rock Hall, Md., including $18,440 for the shelter's rear and side yards and an additional $2,500 to test an area of 225 square feet at the dog park.

Chestnut Trees

The Forest Preserve Advisory Board forwarded information from the American Chestnut Foundation and suggested that the city look into whether it would be advisable to apply for a grant of free seedlings of the American chestnut tree. The American chestnut has nearly been wiped out by a fungus but recent efforts to breed it with the Chinese chestnut have resulted in a new disease-resistant strain of the American chestnut. The foundation is looking for partner organizations to work with it in establishing new stands of the tree. It is assumed that the board is recommending possible plantings in areas other than the Forest Preserve.

Since more information would be needed to evaluate whether proceeding with this program would be advisable, council voted to refer the matter to the city's Advisory Committee on Trees (ACT) for its evaluation and recommendation. City Manager Michael McLaughlin commented that if ACT recommended in favor of pursuing the program, it could be a featured event for Arbor Day.

Plastic Bag Disposal Fee

The perennial bill for allowing Prince George's County to impose fees for plastic bags to be used in retail establishments will once again be introduced this year. Greenbelt has supported the various iterations of the bill over the years. This year, however, there is a twist to the tale that caused concern among some councilmembers. While in the past, it was always clear that the intent was for the retailer to charge the cost of the plastic bag to the noncompliant customer, the bill titled PG-404 charges the fee directly to the retailer.

Councilmember Rodney Roberts said he would not support the bill as written, since charging the retailer is just a way for the county to make money. If the county is making money on something, he added, it has no incentive to eliminate it. Councilmember Edward Putens said he would not support it either. Councilmember Judith Davis said the bill only enables the county to charge the retailer and that the specifics of how it would be implemented would appear in a county law, not the state law. She thought the city would be better advised to work to shape the county bill rather than rejecting the state bill. She suggested postponing action until Assistant City Manager David Moran could get more information.

Racing Pigeon on Way Home Rests and Eats in Greenbelt

by Sue Krofchik and Elaine Nakash

A racing pigeon finds a temporary home in a cat carrier.

There it was. Some kind of bird that resembled a mourning dove but it looked like it had a fluffy white cape over its shoulders. It kept pecking at the grassy area next to the phone pole on Parkway, across the street from the sign for Jane Realty Efficiency Apartments. Two men on the sidewalk passed within two feet of the bird, as oblivious of it as it was of them. They kept walking and talking and it kept pecking the ground. I stayed at the stop sign in my car for awhile, watching, until a car came behind me.

Driving home I kept wondering and worrying about the bird. All that white over its shoulders. Could it have been a baby eagle? That's not so farfetched. Greenbelt is home to an eagle nest, near the 2-lane bridge on Research Road where Beaver Dam Creek flows underneath and beaver had a den years ago. It's about a mile, as the crow flies, from that phone pole on Parkway.

Once home I searched Peterson's Field Guide to Birds East of the Rockies, unsuccessfully. Who in Greenbelt might be able to help? Maybe, Barbara Havekost. I called her. "If Dorothy were alive she would know," said Barbara, a long-time friend of the late Dorothy Lauber, known by many for her birding knowledge. Then it came to me. I'll call Elaine Nakash. She works at Patuxent Research Refuge in the birdbanding area. I tracked her down at the Greenbelt Museum, picked her up and headed to the phone pole. By now about 30 minutes had elapsed since I'd seen the bird. Elaine hoped it would be there so she would get a chance to try to identify it.

When Sue called, I wasn't sure what bird she was describing and was anxious to see it. As her car wound through the Co-op parking lot approaching Parkway, I saw it from a distance and said it's a pigeon. "Oh, no," Sue lamented, "so much for finding a baby eagle." I tried to console her by saying other people probably would have thought the same thing.

We continued toward the corner phone pole. The bird was still pecking nonstop at the ground. I decided to pick it up and check for injuries. He seemed ok. Each leg was banded, a red band on one leg and blue on the other, with engraving on each. We went to my home to look up his numbers on the internet and brought him with us. We were concerned about leaving him on the corner, not knowing if he really was able to fly or care for himself overnight, given the number of raccoons and foxes in our town.

His red band 1185 IF EPR told us he was registered with International Federation of American Homing Pigeon Fanciers through the Hamilton Homing Pigeon Club in Baltimore and was born in November 1985. There was a name on the blue band but the engraving was well worn and we could not read it.

We reached the club contact person, Bill Hohman, and found that our town visitor was registered with the Hamilton group, but it had disbanded a few years ago. "He's probably on his way home after that 100 mile race yesterday (May 17) down in Orange, Va.," Bill said. "Give him some birdseed and water and he'll be all right."

We didn't want to leave him alone in my home so we took him with us to go to Sue's home to get her cat carrier. We wanted the pigeon we now considered our little sweetie to have a small area to call his own if he found my home too large. For birdseed, we went to see if Sue's neighbor, Beth Norden, who feeds birds, was home. She brought out a large cup of seed. Our buddy did not need coaxing.

Home he went with me, in the cat carrier and with plenty of food. His first 24 hours were spent sleeping, eating, drinking and, later, wandering around the house. On day two, Tuesday, he would go to the door or window, look out for a few seconds but then retreat. I was getting used to the little fellow and enjoyed him but wondered if it was time to let him go. The question was answered when Paul, our buddy's owner, called. "Fatten him up and take him three or four miles away from your place and let him go." He said to be sure there weren't power lines around. Sue and I decided we would do this early the next day.

On Wednesday about 6:30 a.m. we drove into the farm (Beltsville Agricultural Research Center) to find a spot for release. We found a gravel lane north of Powder Mill Road and slowly followed its bends until we found a secluded area at the edge of a large field. It had a row of telephone lines stretching east to west. We decided to release him on the northern side of the phone lines. This would allow an unobstructed flight path north to Baltimore. We felt a tinge of sadness, knowing our feathered friend was leaving us, but also happiness that our little fellow was now ready to go home. Sue took him out of the cat carrier as I told her how to hold him for release.

The big moment came. She held him skyward, arms extended. 7:06 a.m. Within seconds his wings burst open as Sue felt his feet gently push off. He went only a few wing flaps and circled back, settling on the top bar of the phone lines that had been at his back on release. We wondered if he was all right or if this had been a test flight before the trip home.

There he sat, facing east, head periodically swiveling from side to side.

Over the next 20 to 25 minutes he stayed on the phone pole bar, preened himself every once in a while, took a tiny step or two periodically, craned his neck at times and every so often a wing would twinge. All isolated movements. Suddenly his feet began a series of quick, short steps and wings began to flap, quicker and quicker – majestically airborne! 7:40 a.m. A sight to behold. His wingspan was unbelievably wide, about 24 to 30 inches tip to tip.

A single, tiny downy feather fluttered to the ground.
